

A Note on Digital Versions of Issues 1 and 2

Issues 1 and 2 of the student journal Discrepancy were previously stored in HTML and as such they did not adequately depict the elements of those issues. The chosen solution was to transfer the elements into PDF files, which unfortunately look generic and whose text placement and page numbers do not match the print versions of the journal. The page counter, which is found in the bottom right corner of documents, refers only to the current document. However, bibliographic information regarding the page range of each element was added to the header area. Furthermore, in these versions of documents, notes are placed at the end of the text, and not as footnotes. The current state is a compromise between available temporal resources and the legibility of digital versions of issues 1 and 2. We kindly ask our readers for understanding.

11th of April, 2017

Editor in chief of Journal Discrepancy

Filip Fila